PLAINFIELD

IN THE FALL

The town of Plainfield was established in 1761 when a group of fifty-six men and one woman from the Plainfield, Connecticut, were granted a charter to settle the newly surveyed town. In the summer of 1763 seventeen proprietors came to clear land and lay out roads. The first lots drawn were along the Connecticut River, the western boundary of the town. Settlement proceeded slowly, but by 1775 there were three hundred inhabitants, two sawmills and two grist mills.
